David Lee Cross was found guilty of 1st degree murder by a jury in front of Judge Pierce. In June 1996, he assaulted his girlfriend while parked on the side of the street. The driver of another car saw him slapping her and grabbing her hair and summoned the police. When the police arrived, they found her lying on the sidewalk. She was taken to the hospital but was pronounced dead upon arrival. Cross has a long history of assaulting her. On December 11th Judge Pierce sentenced him to life in prison at Stillwater.

James D. Pilot was found guilty by a jury of attempted 1st degree murder and 1st degree CSC. On May 11, 1996, he sexually assaulted and nearly killed his girlfriend's best friend. He is 24 years old and has four prior domestic violence charges. Two are from April of 1996 and one is from May 7th, 1996. During the trial, part of his attorney's proof of Pilot's innocence was that he has no history of "this sick behavior." The trial took place in front of Judge Solum and sentencing is scheduled for January 22, 1997.

Joanne Beard was found guilty by a jury of 2nd degree murder in front of Judge Lefler. The victim, a five month old boy, died as a result of a shaking injury that the jury determined was inflicted by her. The infant was in her home for daycare. She is scheduled to be sentenced on January 15, 1997.

Deandre Ramon Robinson was found guilty by a jury of two counts of 1st degree CSC. He forced his girlfriend's 14 year old daughter to have intercourse with him on two occasions. He indicated that he liked young girls because an older lady had sex with him when he was young. He has a prior conviction from 1983 in Illinois for Deviate Sexual Assault. The trial took place in front of Judge Oleisky. Robinson is scheduled to be sentenced on January 14, 1997.

Bruce Harris was found guilty by a jury of 1st degree murder. The victim was a 63 year old woman that he knew because they had lived on the same floor of their apartment building. A concerned relative called the police when the victim did not answer her door after 6:00 a.m. on December 12, 1995. She had been stabbed eight times, four times with a knife and four times with a fork. Three of the wounds were clearly fatal and penetrated her heart. Bones in her throat were broken and indicated that she had also been strangled. A bone near her left eye was fractured and she had bruises in her vaginal area. The trial was held in front of Judge Blaeser who sentenced Harris to life in prison without possibility of release, the mandatory sentence in murder cases involving sexual assault.

The former girlfriend attempted to call the police but Freitag ripped the phone out of the wall, damaging the wires in the receiver. As she tried to get to a neighbor's home to call the police, he slapped her across the face and punched her with his fist in her ribs, knocking the wind out of her. He continued to assault her for about 15 minutes, pulling her hair and landing kicks and blows on various parts of her body, including her face, head, arms, legs and torso. The officer took the phone, identified himself as a police officer, but Freitag said he didn't believe him and once again threatened to shoot everyone in the bar. The officers were able to arrest him at his home. The manager/owner of this bar was his girlfriend's mother's employer. The plea transcript alleges that he was calling the mother because that was the way they arranged child visitation. A new assault occurred before he was sentenced on this assault. See #10 below for the outcome.

#10 7/31/94
3rd degree assault Felony
4th degree assault Felony

Criminal complaint: An off duty police officer in full uniform, directing traffic for the Norwest Cup bicycle race, heard a man yelling and then saw him punch a woman in the face. He approached the woman to find out what was happening and she said her ex-boyfriend was hassling her. When the officer attempted to talk with Freitag, he tried to get away and the officer and a civilian stopped him by knocking him to the ground. During the scuffle he grabbed the officer's fingers and pulled them back. After Freitag was arrested, the officer got medical treatment for his swollen fingers and it was determined that he had at least one, and possibly two, broken fingers. Freitag was out of custody on conditional release awaiting his sentencing on case #9 when these assaults took place.

Outcome: 10/10/94 - #10 - Sentencing in front of Judge McKinsey. Freitag pled guilty to count 2 and count 1 was dismissed. He was sentenced to serve 13 months at Stillwater but this would be stayed for two years if he followed these conditions: the same conditions as the ones on case #9 (see below) plus no contact with the KAF, and restitution to the injured officer. This sentence if imposed would run concurrently with the sentence on case #9.

Outcome: 10/10/94 - #9 - Sentencing in front of Judge McKinsey. He pled guilty to count 1 and count 2 was dismissed. This sentence was to run concurrently with the sentence on case #10 (see above). 12/30/94 - #9 - He failed to return to the ACF while out on work release and his sentence was executed as a result. The escape from custody occurred on 12/16/94.

When she opened the door, he pushed his way in, grabbed her and tackled her onto a chair. She struggled to break free and he grabbed her about the neck, choking her and putting his hand over her mouth. He said "I'm gonna hurt you bad if you scream. I'm gonna put the fear of God in you." She was able to escape and call the police. They observed redness on the right side of her neck and fresh bruises on her arms. After a brief struggle with the police, Freitag was arrested at the scene. Before he was sentenced on this case he committed a new offense. See #14, below.

#14 4/24/96

Violation of an Order for Protection
Gross Misdemeanor

Criminal complaint: While Freitag was in custody in the Hennepin County Jail, the KAF received 25 letters from him from the period between 4/24/96 through 6/21/96. Excerpts from some of the letters are as follows: ..."please help me come home, I miss you so much, I beg you don't let them people find you from down here. And I beg of you, not to talk to them, they want to lock me up for 5 years, I can't do time like that anymore. They might tell you, you may get in trouble by not coming to court, you can't unless they summon you to court...don't let them people try and tell you that I did do what your papers said, you tell them you made it up, or I'm gone for a long time, I know you don't want that to happen...". He also left voice mail messages for her saying..."Hey [KAF] I know I'm not supposed to call you.. whatever I said to you that day and done...whatever...I don't mean this shit... I'm lost you know, and I hope you're not going to follow through in doin' what you're doing...Remember the statement you gave to domestic abuse on what I did? If you talk to them people downtown, everything you said that I did to you, you have to deny that, alright?" The KAF had an active Order for Protection during this time period.

Outcome: 7/15/96 - #14 - Sentencing in front of Judge Swanson. Freitag pled guilty to count 2 after it was reduced to a misdemeanor and count 1 was dismissed. He was sentenced to serve 90 days at the ACF with credit for 90 days already served.

Outcome: 7/15/96 - #13 - Sentencing in front of Judge Swanson. Freitag pled guilty to count 2 and count 1 was dismissed. He was sentenced to serve one year and one day in Stillwater and given credit for 91 days in jail.

Outcome: 7/15/96 - #11 - Revocation in front of Judge Swanson. Freitag admitted that he violated the conditions of the stayed sentence. His sentence was revoked and he was given credit for 91 days served, so no commitment was necessary.

Bruce Allen Freitag was profiled in our January 1997 newsletter. In the previous ten years, he had been charged with 12 domestic violence related crimes in Hennepin County -- he pled guilty to six of those charges and the other six charges were dismissed. Examples of behavior from the six charges to which he pled guilty include: choking the victim; grabbing her hair and arms and pushing her nose into her face; repeatedly making terroristic threats over the phone; punching the victim in the face; forcing his way into the victims house, grabbing her and tackling her onto a chair, and grabbing her by the neck, choking her, and putting his hand over her mouth; and harassing the victim by sending her twenty-five letters in a two month period of time and leaving threatening phone messages.

On July 15, 1996, Freitag pled guilty to felony 5th degree assault and was sentenced to serve one year and a day at Stillwater (with 91 days credited for time served in jail). On the same day, the prosecutor dismissed a felony charge of harassment and Freitag pled guilty to a reduced charge of violation of an order for protection) -- he was sentenced to serve 90 days at the ACF with credit for 90 days already served. He also admitted to violating the conditions of a stayed sentence for escape from custody -- that sentence was revoked and he was given credit for 91 days served. On December 16, 1996, Freitag was released from correctional custody after serving five months for the felony assault.
